WHAT IS DIFFERENT IN AN IT RESUME?

IT Resume

Keywords

Employability Skills

IT Resume - Duties Vs Accomplishments

Job duties are tasks you must do on a job. They are the responsibilities you have for a particular job. A job description lists the duties you will do for your job.

Examples:

- Installs; configures; and upgrades computer hardware and software.
- Provides end-user software troubleshooting and support.

IT Resume - Duties Vs Accomplishments

Accomplishments are something that has been achieved successfully.

Examples:

- We successfully demonstrated the environment operating at 44,000 transactions per second.
- Developed the architecture to support 99.999% availability, and documented the necessary connectivity and network architecture needs to provide a reliable and redundant architecture.
- Developed a key hardware and software component for tactical capture of triage medical information.
- Won a key strategic $80.3M opportunity related to implementing a services environment for government health care.

IT Resume - Quantifying

This federated solution uses technology from IBM, CA, Layer 7, and Mirth to provide clinical transformation and business decision abilities to help bridge lexicon and communications short-falls between the two agencies. We successfully demonstrated the environment operating at 44,000 transactions per second.

Developed the architecture to support 99.999% availability, and documented the necessary connectivity and network architecture needs to provide a reliable and redundant architecture. Supported key application and services that would utilize the ESB, to aid in service pattern design and prioritization.

IT Resume - Quantifying

Developed a key hardware and software component for tactical capture of triage medical information. Won a key strategic $80.3M opportunity related to implementing a services environment for government health care.

Supported both in garrison and in theater programs, to include the development of requirements and workflows on 4 of the 8 Wounded Warrior Lines of Action.

INFOGRAPHIC AND VIDEO RESUMES

Infographic Resumes

- Not for everyone
 - know your audience
 - consider it as a supplement to your resume
 - might be best to display on your LinkedIn Profile vs submission on a job application
- Make it easy to understand
 - follow a logical flow or have it tell a story
 - choose your color scheme carefully
 - simple is better
 - hire a designer to help you
- Customize
 - create a skeleton infographic resume with all info
 - tweak to show your fit to each individual job lead
- Creativity
 - great way to showcase creative skills
 - doesn't supersede a portfolio or graphic samples
- Don't
 - use an infographic resume to hide lack of experience or fit
 - use in place of your traditional resume unless asked for
 - use overly complex charts or graphics

Video Resumes

- Make sure it is appropriate
 - know your audience
 - use for creative type positions
 - keep it short and simple
- Develop a plan and script
 - tell a story, logical order
 - customize to the job applying for
 - be creative, show your personality
 - use visual aids
- Practice makes perfect
 - piece together best takes
 - experiment with delivery of content
- Troubleshoot
 - feedback from family and friends
 - link - accessible/user friendly/no downloads
- Don't
 - try to use it in place of a traditional resume unless requested
 - not a replacement for an interview
 - simply read your resume
 - act unprofessional

Questions and Comments

APPENDIX

Appendix - Super Quick Resume Formatting Basics

- Chronological > Functional
- 1-2 pages
- 11-12 font size
- Normal font type
- No headers or footers
- No personal info
- No 1st person writing
- No lines, graphics, pictures
- No PDF
- No references
- Only go back 10-15 years

Remember: you can bring a fancier resume to the interview!

Appendix - Applicant Tracking Systems

“What is an applicant tracking system??”

They’re the bouncers of the resume world. They prevent 70% of applications from being seen
There are 193 different ATs, so make sure your resume is “scannable”

“How do I beat an applicant tracking system??”

Use keywords from the job lead, even the job title! Especially for IT roles

Don’t spam keywords

No PDFs

No tables, lines, images, or fancy graphics

Call work experience “work experience”

Know someone*

Red flag for ATS problems: “I’m qualified, but I never hear anything back!”

Appendix - The “Golden Zone”

▪Contact Info

- Appropriate email address (no Hotmail or AOL. You’re in IT!!) and voicemail.
- Must include LinkedIn profile URL.

Summary

- Your summary is your greatest hits. For IT, make sure it is filled with appropriate keywords from the job lead.

IT Job Title

- Not only does this help with an ATS, but it will help a reader understand who you are quickly.

Certs

- Put all relevant certs you have based on the job lead, and be careful not to include ones that are irrelevant or outdated.
- Make sure certs are spelled out and in acronym format.

Keywords

- Same as Certs.

Appendix - IT Resume - Duties Vs Accomplishments

- Help Desk Duties
 - respond to requests for technical assistance in person, via phone, electronically
 - diagnose and resolve technical hardware and software issues
 - research questions using available information resources
- Help Desk Accomplishments
 - Employee of the Month 4 months in a row (January – April 2016)
 - Built reputation for working successfully with unhappy clients
 - Became go-to staff member for relaying complicated IT information to diverse clientele
